Week in Review

Friday, Dec. 18, 2020

ADDICTION/SUBSTANCE ABUSE

The ACLU of Ohio filed an amicus brief Monday with the Supreme Court of Ohio in State v. Foreman, a case addressing whether a defendant can be convicted of felony cocaine possession based solely on the presence of metabolites in the body. After Kelly Foreman gave birth in a Seneca County hospital in March 2018, a toxicology screen revealed cocaine or cocaine metabolites in the umbilical cord as well as in the newborn's urine and stool. She was arrested, charged with felony possession of cocaine, and convicted.

Addressing reporters during his Thursday briefing, Gov. Mike DeWine said that an increase in overdose deaths has been a "troubling" aspect of the pandemic, with the associated uncertainty intensifying the struggle those with substance use disorder face. However, he also announced grants totaling $76.5 million to support new strategic efforts combating Ohio's drug crisis in local communities. The grants are part of an overall state share of $96 million in federal State Opioid Response (SOR) 2.0 funding.

The Ohio Department of Public Safety's (ODPS) Office of Criminal Justice Services (OCJS) announced $427,143 in federal grants Thursday to help state and local governments develop substance abuse programs in correctional and detention facilities and community-based aftercare services for offenders.

AGRICULTURE

The Ohio Department of Agriculture (ODAg) plans to allow farmers in 10 more counties to participate in its H2Ohio best management practices (BMP) program, ODAg Director Dorothy Pelanda announced Monday. ODAg spokesperson Shelby Croft told Hannah News that the following counties will be added: Ottawa, Sandusky, Seneca, Wyandot, Crawford, Marion, Shelby, Erie, Huron and Richland Legislation that would eliminate the Ohio Department of Health's (ODH) coronavirus-related order on county fair activities was reported out of the House Agriculture and Rural Development Committee on Wednesday after lawmakers added an amendment creating the "Agricultural Society Working Group for 2021." The bill, SB375 (Hoagland), backed by county fairs and related industries, recently moved out of the Senate Agriculture and Natural Resources Committee after one hearing and was passed by the Senate the next day. The DeWine administration had initially allowed for full fairs, but ultimately limited county and independent fairs to junior fair activities and spectator-free harness racing after a number of COVID-19 cases were traced back to fairs, some of which were apparently not complying with ODH's public health order.

ARTS, SPORTS AND ENTERTAINMENT

After decades of protests from Native American advocacy organizations, the Major League Baseball (MLB) team in Cleveland will soon cease being known as the "Indians." On Monday, the Cleveland Indians officially announced its decision to begin the process of changing its name, noting team leaders conducted an "extensive" review process starting in July. The NFL's Washington Football Team dropped the name "Redskins" that month, increasing pressure on the Indians to make a similar move. The Indians recently dropped its "Chief Wahoo" logo, which was widely recognized as a racist caricature of a Native American.

The U.S. Supreme Court on Wednesday agreed to consider whether the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) can restrict what kind of compensation its athletes can receive. The NCAA appealed the decision of the U.S. Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals in NCAA v. Alston, which found that the NCAA's eligibility rules regarding athlete compensation violate federal antitrust law.

ATTORNEY GENERAL

Ohio Attorney General Dave Yost has joined the "Do the Write Thing" Challenge to encourage young people -- in their own words -- to discuss instances of violence they have experienced and to share their ideas about how to reduce violence in their community. The challenge is organized by the U.S. National Campaign to Stop Youth Violence and has been in existence for 25 years, operating programs in 26 cities in 13 states.

FY21-22 CAPITAL APPROPRIATIONS

The Conference Committee on SB310 (Dolan) finished its work, started early in the week, on Thursday in a two-part meeting that saw the conference committee further expand the scope of the bill beyond capital appropriations, moving it to "Christmas tree" status. Already on Wednesday, provisions had been added addressing a variety of pandemic related issues ranging from the spending of CARES Act dollars to scope of practice questions during the pandemic to further afield addressing a delay in the EdChoice application period and the establishing of a kinship care program. On Thursday, the committee met in the morning where it quickly added eight more amendments, returning after 9 p.m. that night to add another five amendments before approving the conference report on a unanimous 6-0 vote. SB310 had an unusual road through the Legislature, making a 100 percent switch from its original purpose as a vehicle to provide for the distribution of federal coronavirus relief funds to local governments to having those provisions removed entirely and the FY21-22 capital appropriations package wholesale substituted into the bill.

CHILDREN/FAMILIES

Infant deaths in Ohio dropped slightly in 2019 for a third consecutive year, according to a report released by the Ohio Department of Health (ODH) Thursday, but the data also found Black infants were 2.8 times more likely to die than White ones. Discussing the report in his Thursday press conference, Gov. Mike DeWine said that finding is "extremely troubling" and "unacceptable." While he noted that efforts had been implemented near the end of 2019 and thus were not represented in the data, DeWine said that more needs to be done to address the racial gap. The latest data showed 929 infant deaths, down from 938 the year before, but the number of Black infant deaths increased by 17 to 356. The number of White infants that died in 2019 was 518, the lowest number in the past 10 years.

CORONAVIRUS

The unethical Tuskegee study, the Trump administration's absence of credibility and poor communication, lack of diversity in clinical studies and the current shoddy level of health care experienced by many Black and Latinx Ohioans are all factors causing minorities to hesitate before agreeing to take a COVID-19 vaccine, Ohio Commission on Minority Health (OCMH) Director Angela Dawson said Friday during the Ohio Legislative Black Caucus (OLBC) Foundation's "Perspective 2020."

Calling it "the day we have been waiting for," Gov. Mike DeWine announced Monday that the start of vaccinations for health care workers is a major step toward ending the pandemic, while also cautioning that there is a considerable way to go before herd immunity is achieved. Ohioans should not let their guard down in the coming weeks and months, he said, and those who have been vaccinated should continue wearing a mask and taking other steps to protect those around them. Ohio Department of Health (ODH) Chief Medical Officer Bruce Vanderhoff said the federal Centers for Disease Control (CDC) and Food and Drug Administration (FDA) officials are still studying how well the vaccine prevents people from transmitting the virus to others.

Chief Justice Maureen O'Connor urged Gov. Mike DeWine to include court staff and litigants in a select group of individuals chosen for round one of the coronavirus vaccine. O'Connor labeled county and district courthouses some of the "busiest government offices and among the hardest to enforce social distancing," noting sketchy broadband also hampers remote proceedings in rural courts.

Ohio is scheduled to receive 420,000 doses of COVID-19 vaccine from Pfizer and Moderna by Christmas, and another 137,000 doses the week of New Year's Day, Gov. Mike DeWine said Tuesday. Monday was the first day Ohio began receiving and administering doses of vaccine, and DeWine spent his Tuesday press conference speaking with medical professionals around the state about the efforts to roll out the doses that Ohio receives to medical professionals and those in congregate settings like nursing homes. They shared a similar message -- that the vaccine is the beginning of the end of the COVID-19 pandemic, but the end is still far away and that Ohioans should continue to take safety precautions to prevent the spread of the virus.

DeWine and Ohio Department of Health (ODH) Chief Medical Officer Dr. Bruce Vanderhoff stressed the safety of the coronavirus vaccine Thursday, as health care workers continue to undergo vaccination. It will be provided in nursing homes on Friday. Four pharmacy companies will conduct that effort using the Pfizer vaccine, DeWine said, as part of an expanded federal program. The four companies are also handling the scheduling for when vaccination is done, with all nursing homes at the same priority level. The state veterans homes will be included in that effort, and DeWine said he would be at the home in Sandusky to see vaccinations there firsthand Friday.

Reps. John Patterson (D-Jefferson) and John Rogers (D-Mentor-on-the-Lake) have both been hospitalized due to COVID-19, according to interviews the two gave to the Ohio Capital Journal. Both have also been diagnosed with pneumonia as a result. The article, published Tuesday, said that Rogers was admitted Sunday afternoon and has received supplemental oxygen, while Patterson was hospitalized Monday and has not needed oxygen.

ECONOMY

According to the Ohio Department of Job and Family Services (ODJFS), if the October employment rebound after the initial COVID-19 disruptions continues throughout 2020 in a similar magnitude, total employment is predicted to increase at an annual rate of 0.27 percent for the next six months in Ohio.

For the week ending Dec. 12, the Ohio Department of Job and Family Services (ODJFS) reported 38,327 initial unemployment claims to the U.S. Department of Labor (DOL). That number is higher than last week's total of 36,327, which had been the highest number in several months as the state continues to grapple with the surge of coronavirus-related cases, hospitalizations, intensive care unit (ICU) admissions and deaths.

EDUCATION

The State Board of Education (SBOE) Assessment and Accountability Committee considered a study from the Fordham Institute at its Monday meeting showing higher academic and behavioral outcomes for low-income students in charter schools compared to their peers in traditional public schools. Speaking to the committee was the study's author Stephane Lavertu, a professor at the Ohio State University John Glenn College of Public Affairs, who said the students who experience the highest education gains from attending charter schools are low-income students, students in urban areas and Black students.

The State Board of Education (SBOE) spent most of its final meeting for the year revisiting the discussion of racism and the board's decision to adopt a resolution condemning racism as an impediment to educational equity over the summer. The board voted in adopt the resolution in the wake of nationwide protests over racism and police conduct sparked by the death of George Floyd, and it inspired lengthy debate and drew public criticism and praise at board meetings for months. The discussion Tuesday similarly lasted over two hours and began when Board President Laura Kohler presented members with a video, available at <https://tinyurl.com/yahc52y9>, which details the history of racial oppression in America. She asked State Superintendent Paolo DeMaria to moderate a discussion on the video among members, though she noted not all members may want to see the video, and some members did temporarily leave the virtual meeting.

Fourteen rural Ohio school districts and their corresponding counties and townships will share more than $1.3 million in timber sales from state forests, according to the Ohio Department of Natural Resources (ODNR) Division of Forestry. "Investments in our schools and communities are investments in the future," Gov. Mike DeWine said. "The funding provided by the sound management of Ohio's forests through the 'Trees to Textbooks' program is particularly critical right now, as educators are finding new and different ways to support our students this year."

ELECTIONS

The Ohio Elections Commission found a violation in Rep. Nino Vitale's (R-Urbana) campaign finance report due to the report's being filed a day late, but did not impose any penalties or fines against him. The commission also set a hearing for other matters regarding Vitale that had been forwarded by Secretary of State Frank LaRose's office alleging that on at least three occasions, Friends to Elect Nino Vitale, paid for Facebook advertisements without reporting those expenditures in his annual report; that his campaign failed to keep separate contributions received by his campaign committee from a personal or business account of Vitale; and that he has converted items from his campaign fund for personal use.

ELECTIONS 2020

Ohio's 18 Electoral College members met Monday in the Ohio Senate Chamber to officially cast the state's electoral votes for President Donald Trump and Vice President Mike Pence. It was the first time since 1960 Ohio's delegation cast its votes for the candidates who ultimately did not prevail. President-elect Joe Biden received 306 electoral votes as delegations met in their respective states around the country, more than the 270 votes needed to be elected president.

The winners of the two Ohio Supreme Court races this year outspent their opponents in the days leading up to the Nov. 3 election, according to new campaign finance filings with the secretary of state's office. The reports showed Democrat Jennifer Brunner, who unseated Justice Judith French, raised nearly $62,000 in the final days of the campaign, spent $308,133, and has $35,909 on hand. In the other Supreme Court race, which saw incumbent Sharon Kennedy defeat John O'Donnell, Kennedy reported receiving $98,421 in contributions and spent $329,196, and has $78,634 on hand. O'Donnell raised $49,876, spent $162,070, and has $37,053 on hand. He also lent his own committee $15,000.

In other reports filed Friday, the Republican Senate Campaign Committee outspent all of the other legislative caucuses combined as it picked up another seat in the chamber and defended all of its incumbents. According to filings, the committee raised $511,050, spent nearly $1.8 million, and has $195,129 on hand. The committee also made $933,159 in in-kind contributions. On the other side of the aisle, the Senate Democratic Caucus raised $54,862, spent $285,236, and has $115,741 on hand.

Franklin County Judge Richard Frye recently dismissed a lawsuit by the Ohio Democratic Party (ODP) against Secretary of State Frank LaRose over an order limiting the number of absentee ballot dropboxes each county can have. ODP filed the lawsuit in August, arguing that Ohio law did not prevent counties from having more than one location for voters to return absentee ballots. Frye sided with the plaintiffs, saying LaRose's directive limiting the number of boxes was arbitrary and unreasonable. LaRose appealed, and the 10th District Court of Appeals found fault with LaRose's interpretation of the Ohio Revised Code to limit the number of boxes, but also said that Frye had overstepped his authority in ordering LaRose to permit more drop boxes.

The U.S. Supreme Court late Friday rejected a lawsuit filed by the attorney general of Texas against four swing states over the presidential election, with the Court saying Texas lacked standing to file the lawsuit. In a one-page order issued by the Court, the justices said Texas "has not demonstrated a judicially cognizable interest in the manner in which another state conducts its elections. All other pending motions are dismissed as moot." Justice Samuel Alito wrote a dissent that Justice Clarence Thomas joined, saying that it is his view the Court does not have the discretion to deny the filing of a bill of complaint in a case that falls within the Court's jurisdiction.

ENERGY

The Ohio Environmental Council (OEC) filed an amicus brief in support of the lawsuit filed by Columbus and Cincinnati to halt the HB6 (Callender-Wilkin) rider, a cost scheduled to hit the pockets of millions of Ohioans in the new year. The two cities sued the state of Ohio in the Franklin County Court of Common Pleas in October, naming former Public Utilities Commission of Ohio (PUCO) Chair Sam Randazzo, Ohio Treasurer Robert Sprague and FirstEnergy in the lawsuit.

After accepting a multifaceted amendment to address some of the concerns expressed over the past week, the House Select Committee on Energy Policy and Oversight voted mostly along party lines to report out HB798 (Hoops), which would delay and modify some provisions in scandal-plagued energy subsidy law HB6 (Callender-Wilkin). Rep. Mark Romanchuk (R-Mansfield) joined Reps. David Leland (D-Columbus), Kristin Boggs (D-Columbus), Sedrick Denson (D-Cincinnati), Michael O'Brien (D-Warren), Allison Russo (D-Columbus) and Kent Smith (D-Euclid) in voting against the bill in the 8-7 vote.

ENVIRONMENT

Gov. Mike DeWine and Ohio Environmental Protection Agency (Ohio EPA) Director Laurie Stevenson announced that nearly $12 million in grants will be awarded to 40 entities, including 10 school districts, to reduce nitrogen oxide emissions from diesel vehicles and equipment.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (USEPA) has launched the Clearinghouse for Environmental Finance, an online database of land, air and water information. This new database catalogues available funding, financing and instructional resources to aid communities in their efforts to improve environmental conditions. The USEPA Office of Policy collaborated with the USEPA Office of Water to launch the new collection of data, according to a news release from the federal agency.

The Ohio Air Quality Development Authority (OAQDA) has closed on $85,120 in bond financing to support Gault's Plaza Cleaners and Laundromat in Knox County, the agency announced Tuesday.

GAMING/GAMBLING

While the state's four casinos and seven racinos have enjoyed financial success in the months after reopening during the COVID-19 pandemic, gamblers spent less time and money at the facilities in November, according to data from the Ohio Casino Control Commission (OCCC) and Ohio Lottery Commission (OLC). Statewide revenues were down for a variety of reasons, including the DeWine administration's curfew and patrons' taking seriously their role in reducing the spread of the coronavirus, OCCC spokesperson Jessica Franks and OLC spokesperson Danielle Frizzi-Babb told Hannah News.

Individuals in Ohio would be allowed to use deadly force against another person if they believe they are in immediate danger of death or serious bodily harm in nearly any location or situation under legislation approved by the House on Thursday. Passing the "stand your ground" gun bill was one of many actions taken by the House during the 12-hour-long session that lasted into the early hours of Friday morning. The chamber also acted on bills related to abortion, criminal justice reform, capital appropriations, water quality, critical infrastructure, health care and electronic bingo, among other issues. The chamber plans to hold another session sometime next week to finish up its work.

The House also didn't attempt to override Gov. Mike DeWine's veto of SB311 (McColley-Roegner), legislation that restricts the authority of the Ohio Department of Health (ODH) to act during a pandemic or bioterrorist attack. The House actually may not have had the necessary votes to take action on HB798 -- the HB6 delay bill -- or SB311, as 13 members were absent due to COVID-19 diagnoses or other reasons. Those not attending session included Reps. Richard Brown (D-Canal Winchester), Jon Cross (R-Kenton), Anthony DeVitis (R-Uniontown), Diane Grendell (R-Chesterland), Larry Householder (R-Glenford), Bernadine Kennedy Kent (D-Columbus), Michele Lepore-Hagan (D-Youngstown), John Patterson (D-Jefferson), Tom Patton (R-Strongsville), John Rogers (D-Mentor-on-the-Lake), Gary Scherer (R-Circleville), Nino Vitale (R-Urbana) and Casey Weinstein (D-Hudson).

- SB236 (S. Term-limited Sen. Peggy Lehner (R-Kettering) sees wearing a mask as an extension of her pro-life principles, which she said have provided her a moral compass for passing policy at the Statehouse. Given the consensus of medical experts who say that mask-wearing is better to prevent the spread of COVID-19 than not wearing a mask, Lehner said she sees masks as protecting life. "I just don't understand how you in one minute can be talking about pro-life issues where life is the most important value that we have, and in the next, refusing to do something simple like wearing a mask that can protect all of us. I really struggle with that," Lehner told Hannah News in an interview. "It struck me as really ironic how many people are saying, 'Keep your hands off my body: it's my choice as to whether or not to wear a mask,' and that those are the very same people who are advocating pro-life principles. So yeah, I have been -- baffled is way too mild of a word."

Rep. Bernadine Kennedy Kent (D-Columbus), who has refused to attend hearings or sessions for much of the 133rd General Assembly, filed a federal lawsuit against the House Democratic Caucus, Minority Leader Emilia Sykes (D-Akron) and former Minority Leader Fred Strahorn (D-Dayton) Wednesday, arguing her removal from the caucus violated her rights. The lawsuit was filed in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Ohio and claims House Democratic leaders retaliated against her and violated her First Amendment rights when it voted to remove her from the caucus in June 2018.

HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES

The appointment of Stephanie McCloud as director of the Ohio Department of Health (ODH) cleared the Senate this week even as Democratic members in committee and on the floor objected to her lack of a medical background or public health work. McCloud, however, was confirmed on a party line vote.

HUMAN SERVICES

The campaign will feature digital and social media messaging around the state highlighting resources for Ohioans who may be struggling with losses from COVID-19 or other grief.

JUDICIAL

Chief Justice Maureen O'Connor presided virtually over the winter 2020 Bar Admission Ceremony for 721 candidates Monday. Applicants passed Ohio's first remote bar exam and met all other admission requirements.

Chief Justice Maureen O'Connor announced a pair of judicial orders addressing the projected winter increase in COVID-19 cases. The first tolls case time standards for 90 days, while the second temporarily waives in-person education courses for guardians ad litem in favor of remote learning, effective Jan. 1.

State Medical Board staff must verbally threaten a physician suspected of sexual improprieties with license suspension or worse during a noncustodial interview if the doctor expects later to suppress as "coerced" comments suggesting guilt. That's true, the Ohio Supreme Court said Tuesday, even though state law warns doctors against license loss for failing to answer investigators truthfully. Medical board licensees, moreover, must actually assert their Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination during an "investigative office conference" or "investigative interview" not involving police to suppress questionable statements during a subsequent criminal trial. The ruling came in the case of former Dr. James Gideon, a onetime Allen County rheumatologist who lost his medical license after a number of women accused him of sexual imposition in 2017. Gideon faced parallel investigations by the medical board and police.

The Ohio Board of Professional Conduct is announcing new leadership for 2021, electing Lucas County attorney Patricia Wise as board chair and Lorain County Court of Common Pleas Court Judge D. Chris Cook as board vice chair. They will serve one-year terms commencing Friday, Jan. 1.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Veteran lawmaker Sen. Teresa Fedor (D-Toledo) crossed the aisle Thursday to join Republicans in a rare rebuke of legislation called for a committee vote in the Senate Judiciary Committee. Senate Majority Floor Leader Matt Huffman (R-Lima) cast doubt on claims township police would not use expanded jurisdictional authority over interstate highways for speed traps and new revenue streams, as HB539 (Ghanbari-Blair) went down 5-5. The bill would have extended interstate ticketing, currently reserved for townships with populations exceeding 50,000, to those with 5,000-50,000. It had been amended minutes before passage in the House Criminal Justice Committee on Dec. 3 to earmark all moneys to the county and to keep township officers in their own jurisdictions. It went on to pass the House that same day on a vote of 73-20.

MARIJUANA/HEMP

More than 150,000 patients are now registered under the Ohio Medical Marijuana Control Program (MMCP), according to the Ohio Board of Pharmacy (OBP). A total of 154,376 patients are registered, OBP said in announcing November's updated MMCP patient and caregiver numbers.

Other items on the agenda included an overview of Optumas' actuarial review for JMOC which will occur in two phases, JMOC Executive Director Jada Brady told the group.

MILITARY AFFAIRS

After serving in the Ohio National Guard for more than 30 years, U.S. Rep. Steve Stivers (R-Columbus) was promoted to major general Friday. Stivers is one of the highest-ranking National Guard members to simultaneously serve in Congress. He completed tours of duty in Operation Iraqi Freedom (2004-05) in Kuwait, Iraq, Qatar and Djibouti, where he led 400 soldiers and contractors and earned the Bronze Star for his leadership.

NATURAL RESOURCES

The Ohio Department of Natural Resources (ODNR) will offer virtual hikes in lieu of the traditional in-person guided tours held in January and February of each year. The naturalist-led, online series will give Ohioans an opportunity to plan their own winter hikes while maintaining a safe social distance, the department said.

The ODNR Division of Wildlife (DOW) has identified a positive test for Chronic Wasting Disease (CWD) in a wild white-tailed deer in Wyandot County. This is the state's first case of CWD detected in the wild in at least 18 years, according to the department.

A creative approach to a challenging situation has earned Hocking Hills State Park the National Association of State Park Directors (NASPD) President's Award for Innovation, according to ODNR. The award recognized the park's new trail design, which accommodates social distancing guidelines and safety during the COVID-19 pandemic.

ODNR announced it will offer $3 million in grant funding to improve motorized boat access at public facilities across the state. Managed by ODNR's Division of Parks and Watercraft, the Cooperative Boating Facility grant is a competitive grant program offering 100 percent reimbursement to eligible political subdivisions such as municipalities, townships, counties, joint recreational districts, park districts, conservancy districts and state and federal agencies.

Lou Gentile; Will Klatt, a Franklin County activist; Gary Josephson, who ran for the Ohio House but lost in a Democratic primary earlier this year; Liz Walters, a former state party executive director and a member of Summit County Council; and Vanessa Enoch, who lost congressional races to U.S. Rep. Warren Davidson (R-Troy) in 2018 and 2020.

POLLS/STUDIES

Despite 60 percent of Americans saying they believe Democrat Joe Biden's election as legitimate, 77 percent of Republicans believe there was widespread voter fraud, according to a recent poll conducted by Quinnipiac University. The likelihood that voters reported that they believed the election results or not varied on party lines, with 98 percent of Democrats believing the election results, compared to 62 percent of independents and only 23 percent of Republicans who said the same.

PUBLIC SAFETY

The Ohio Department of Public Safety (DPS) announced Wednesday that it is still accepting grant applications for costs related to personal protective equipment (PPE), with the window closing either on Thursday, Dec. 31 or when funds are exhausted. The DPS Division of Emergency Medical Services (EMS) is offering one-time awards of up to $1,500 for qualifying PPE purchases by eligible EMS and medical transportation agencies this year, with the total funding amount set at $425,000. Information on the grants is available at <https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/COVID-19PPEgrant>.

SECRETARY OF STATE

Ohio Secretary of State Frank LaRose warned Ohio businesses of a phishing email scam he said he was alerted to Monday, telling businesses not to click a link in the email alleging to be from the Ohio Secretary of State's (SOS) office. It is not. The email tells recipients that they must click a link to "validate" their profile so they don't experience any delays in service. The clicked link then asks detailed information to be submitted, including the individual's Social Security number.

STATE GOVERNMENT

Kent State University (KSU) was taken to task over anime "pornography" one legislator was unwilling to read at Monday's Controlling Board hearing. Board President W. "Fletch" Zimpher questioned its relevance to the school's capital request, but Rep. Shane Wilkin (R-Hillsboro) said both concerned KSU's state funding. The university's $131,000 request for "x-ray scattering" equipment was one 45 agency submissions with a waiver of competitive selection, by Senate President Pro Tem Bob Peterson's (R-Sabina) count. He said that was nearly half the day's requests -- "higher than we would like to see."

TECHNOLOGY

A pilot project in the Marysville area will connect 90 households and 10 small businesses with high-speed Internet provided by SpaceX's satellite broadband service early next year, according to a Wednesday announcement by Lt. Gov. Jon Husted and other officials. The project will focus on Allen Township in Union County and is the largest effort in the Midwest yet by the SpaceX service, called Starlink. Sean O'Brien (D-Cortland), both of whom lost their reelection efforts in November. PUCO's Nominating Council will meet Monday, Dec. 21 to recommend four names to Gov. Mike DeWine who will then make the final decision about whom to appoint for the remaining three years of the Sam Randazzo term which expires on April 10, 2024.

The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio (PUCO) Nominating Council issued its second call for candidates in two weeks Monday after previously launching a search for the vacant seat of its embattled former chairman, Sam Randazzo, whose unexpired term extends through 2024.
